How far do we go to test an accessory? About 120,000 miles

Triumph accessories get a rough ride.

They get endurance tested in exactly the same way as the bikes they're designed for – the equivalent of 120,000 miles real world riding in two weeks on a specially built track.

Then they get hammered by Triumph test riders doing thousands more real life miles on fully kitted bikes, on road, on track, in all kinds of weather and at speed.

Prior to sign off, accessories undergo further rigorous testing which includes humidity, salt spray, stability, durability, fit and function tests. There is no room for compromise. Triumph accessories only reach our dealers when the dedicated accessories team are happy to fit the accessories they've developed to their own bikes.

It's tough, but it's what makes a Triumph accessory as much a performance part of the bike as the engine or chassis.
